

For Immediate Release

Personal Child Stories
Website: www.personalchildstories.com
Contact: Shara Lawrence-Weiss
Email: info@personalchildstories.com

Personal Child Stories is happy to announce their partnership with Treasures 4 Teachers, based in Tempe, Arizona.

Director of T4T, Barb Blalock, has created a recycling concept titled, “The Cap Catcher.” She encourages families around the nation to place a reusable bottle/jar/container on their counter in order to collect varying bottle caps. Caps are oftentimes tossed into the recycle bin, however, they are not recyclable. In turn, the caps end up in the ocean and are then eaten by the sea life. This is dangerous to the animals and their surroundings.

Rather than toss the caps out, why not save them? Businesses and patrons can send their caps to T4T where they will be sorted and passed on to teachers for use in their classrooms, as manipulatives!

How does this work? Caps can be counted, sorted, played with, stacked, used in art projects and so much more!

In an effort to express the many uses of these caps for young learners, T4T enlisted Personal Child Stories in the creation of a special book. This book shows, in a fun and educationally appropriate manner, just some of the many uses the recycled caps can provide.

To flip through the pages of the Cap Catcher book, click here.

For more information please contact: info@personalchildstories.com

#####